HAMILTON IN PHOENIX

THE ORGANIST, NOT THE MUSICAL

Dr. Hamilton's New Repertoire Workshop at Orangewood Presbyterian, Phoenix

Concert at Lord of Life Lutheran, Sun City West

Playing the Glatter-Götz/Rosales
III/47 Op. 39 (2014)

Dr. Hamilton and CAZAGO Members after the Concert

THE DEAN'S CORNER

Dear Friends,

November certainly had its ups and downs! First, we were thrilled to welcome Stephen Hamilton to Phoenix. Many thanks to Gloria Lien and the people of Lord of Life Lutheran for hosting Stephen and the concert. And, thanks to Chuck Sedgwick and the people of Orangewood Presbyterian for hosting the workshop. I was thrilled to see so many at both!

Sadly, we have lost a number of important figures in our profession this month, including our beloved Charlie Balogh. He had been a part of the musical life of Phoenix for decades, and was a fine musician. My deepest condolences go to his family and the entire Organ Stop Pizza staff at this difficult time.

Also, in the last few weeks we lost: Mark Schweitzer, founder of and a principal contributor to St. James Music Press (which has published accessible church music for choirs and organists for decades); Sir Stephen Cleobury, recently retired Director of Music for King's College, Cambridge—a post that he held for 37 years; and Colin Mawby, Master of Music for Westminster Cathedral. Their passing serves as a reminder that time is short and bids us to rejoice in the works, both great and small, of those around us.

In gratitude for all of you, and with every best wish for a blessed holiday season.

Gary Quamme
Dean, CAZAGO

Next Board Meeting:
Monday, Jan. 6,
7:00 PM at All Saints'
Episcopal Church.

CARING & CONCERNS

The Arizona organ community mourns the loss of Charlie Balogh, organist at Organ Stop Pizza in Mesa for 28 years, who died Thursday, Nov. 21, while hospitalized from complications due to a stroke. Charlie leaves a widespread legacy from his acclaimed concerts and recordings. He was named Organist of the Year by the American Theatre Organ Society in 2000. Charlie's brother David writes, "The musical world has lost a unique star that cannot be replaced." Charlie "touched the lives of thousands worldwide with his outstanding musical arrangements, selfless devotion to his fans and humorous loving demeanor that warmed the hearts of everyone he met."

A GoFundMe page has been established to help with memorial expenses. Further details will be published online when available.

In addition to resident OSP organist Lew Williams, colleagues Brett Valliant, Glenn Tallar, and Ken Double are filling in to complete the playing schedule throughout the month of December. Plans have been made for a permanent replacement in January 2020 but will be announced by OSP when all is finalized.

FROM THE CHAPLAIN'S DESK

"...while God added his testimony by signs and wonders and various miracles, and by gifts of the Holy Spirit, distributed according to his will." HEBREWS 2:4

Dear Friends,

We are entering a season of wonder. The opportunities for musical offerings are endless.

Choir rehearsals move forward in rapid succession. We're asked to make things happen in such a fast manner that it feels as if everything needed to happen yesterday. Still, there's a demand for additional practice time for all these extra services and events, and yet, there seems to be no time to do all of the other administrative functions that need to happen. No one taught us any of this in school!

God offers many people gifts of renewal, of joy, of reconciliation during this most wonderful time of year. Thousands are the beneficiaries of everything we do. They love our work! They are ecstatic about their experiences in the concert hall and at church. Yet, we can often feel totally spent. Our energy is fully depleted, but we still have one more thing to do. How did we end up feeling like this?

You are not alone! Many of us push ourselves to places where our minds, bodies, and spirits should probably never go. We push ourselves hard and we forget to practice a good ritual of self-care.

Many professionals have, at times, believed that self-care is too self-indulgent to be helpful. We do not realize that being kind to ourselves is as important as being kind to others. Brené Brown writes: "After two decades of research on shame, authenticity, and belonging, I'm convinced that loving ourselves is the most difficult and courageous thing we'll ever do."

Practicing good self-care is vital, because the more we put on our own oxygen mask for life before helping others, the more we empower ourselves to feel fulfilled. Sarah Steckler, a life coach, adds, "the more fulfilled you feel, the more you have to offer to those who need you."

So how might we do this? How might we also experience the wonders and joys of the season? It most definitely starts by taking care of ourselves.

A few recommendations for good self-care during the holidays might include:

- Getting enough sleep
- Eating as nutritiously as possible
- Exercising daily
- Praying and meditating daily
- Spending time with people we love
- Finding time for leisure and recreation

If you're thinking this might be difficult, you are correct! It is difficult, but the choice to take care of ourselves during the holidays will only brighten up the world of anyone whom we interact with—our employers, our congregations, our families, and our friends.

In the same manner in which we take time to practice our musical offerings, we must practice good habits of self-care during this extremely busy time of year. No one practices self-care in the same way, but we all have a responsibility to try. After all, you are very important to your community, to your friends and family, and most importantly to God!

This season is filled with potential for peace, love, and abiding joy. The potential is there! Self-care will be one way in which you can engage with every good thing the season has to offer. By doing so, you may encounter an even greater and abundant blessing from God in all that you do!

With every blessing for a very happy and joyous season,

Troy Mendez

FEATURED ARTICLE

Medieval Organ Music published in Vox Humana,
October 14, 2018.

Kimberly Marshall, Professor of Organ at Arizona State University, discusses medieval organ literature, instrument reconstructions, and ornamentation and improvisation practice with Vox Humana Associate Editor Guy Whatley.

"... Listening to one of these pieces is the closest that modern people can come to experiencing time as someone from the Middle Ages would. We can imitate the clothing, architecture and painting of the period, but when you experience time the same way as a person living in medieval Europe, that's really special. I want to stress that our earliest surviving organ music is great for concerts, teaching, and liturgical contexts. I attempt to show the ways this music can be used in the hope that other organists catch the bug!"
